

Evergreen Exchange with Louis Gave (Episode 1)

At Evergreen Gavekal, we're committed to providing EVA readers with new and relevant content. Beyond types of content we put out into the ether, we're also constantly considering easier ways for EVA readers to consume what can be a fairly lengthy newsletter. While EVA is great, we understand not everyone has the time to sit down and read it cover to cover. To that end, we've decided to start producing a monthly podcast as a change-of-pace alternative. Anyone that's listened to a podcast like Serial or This American Life – or even a book on tape - knows that the auditory approach to content affords listeners the flexibility to consume it on their terms. Ours, the Evergreen Exchange, is no different. You can throw it on at the gym, while on a walk – whenever it's convenient. We're excited about the guests we'll interview and think you'll enjoy their industry perspectives, entertaining background stories, and everything in between.

With that, our pilot episode focuses on Gavekal partner Louis Gave, as CEO Tyler Hay sits down with him to discuss the current economic climate, how to say his last name, and much more.

We hope you enjoy!
